1.1.1. The institution ensures effective curriculum delivery through a well planned and documented process

The institution was about to enter in the process of implementing the newly introduced system of NEP from July 2023 onwards. A huge change took place in the curriculum of all subjects affecting the syllabi structure and Course Papers as well. The CBCS model for UG courses were however continued for the existing Semester 3, Semester 4, Semester 5 and Semester 6 students in this academic year. The curriculum was delivered in the following ways:

- The session began by admitting a group of fresh learners into its curriculum.
- Academic calendar of the University of Burdwan was followed to prepare the institution's academic calendar with tentative schedules for conducting admission, classes, internal assignments and other important programmes.
- NEP Induction programs were organised by the IQAC and Departmental heads to mentor the newly admitted students about the NEP 2020.
- Routines and syllabus distributions were prepared and circulated through, meetings, notice boards and website of the College.
- Tentative dates were announced through notices before internal examinations, Programs and Special days.
- Remedial classes, Library resourcing, Add on Courses and field works for VAC Papers were chalked out according to the convenience of teachers and students.
