ANALYTIC FUNCTIONS

Differentiability

Definition: If G is an open set in \mathbb{C} and $f: G \rightarrow \mathbb{C}$ then f is differentiable at a point z_0 in G if $\lim_{z \rightarrow z_0} \frac{f(z) - f(z_0)}{z - z_0}$ exists. The value of this limit is denoted by $f'(z_0)$ and is called the derivative of f at z_0 . If f is differentiable at each point of G we say that f is differentiable on G . Notice that if f is differentiable on G then $f'(z)$ defines a function. If f' is continuous then we say that f is continuously differentiable. If f is differentiable then f is twice differentiable.

Theorem: A real valued function of a complex variable either has derivative zero or the derivative does not exist.

Proof: Suppose that f is real valued function of complex variable whose derivative exists at a point z_0 . Then if we take the limit along the real axis, then $f'(z_0)$ is real. If we take the limit along imaginary axis, then becomes a purely imaginary number.

Note

1. $f(z) = |z|$ is nowhere differentiable.
2. $f(z) = |z|^2$ is differentiable at $z=0$ and is nowhere differentiable at $z \neq 0$.
3. $f(z) = \bar{z}$ is a fixed point z_0 then f is differentiable only at z_0 .
4. $f(z) = z \bar{z}$ is differentiable at $z=0$.

Remark: A function is analytic if it is continuously differentiable.

Ob. we say that the complex function f is analytic at the point provided there is some $\epsilon > 0$ such that f' exists for all z . In other words, f must be differentiable

Sir/Madam,

I have been directed to request all Principal/Teachers-in-charge of General Degree Colleges to start Semester-III & Semester-V Classes using online/electronic mode. A departmental time-table for this purpose may be followed and as many students as possible may be involved in the process. Colleges may make a store of lessons taught (audio/video/personally prepared study material) for future use of learners who cannot avail themselves of online mode. This will be started within one week. Reporting of details of classes taken is also to be done as and when asked by the University.

The screenshot displays a WhatsApp chat window. At the top, there is a blue header banner with a yellow circular profile picture on the right and the text "Selamat Pagi" (Good Morning) on the left. Below the banner, a list of messages is visible, each starting with a circular profile picture and followed by text. The messages are partially obscured by a vertical line, suggesting a scrollable list. On the left side of the chat, there is a sidebar with a list of contacts, each represented by a small circular icon. On the right side, there is a search bar and other chat controls.
